THE DEAD QUEEN.

It became the mournful office of this journal to be the first to publish the news of the death of the Dowager Queen Emma. In this issue are given further particulars of the event that has shrouded the community so suddenly in gloom, also a brief but somewhat comprehensive sketch of the life of Her late Majesty. People who desire to send copies abroad can procure them at the office and at the bookstores by applying early. The name of Queen Emma is identified in other countries with this Kingdom, and an account of her life and death will find interested readers wherever it may be sent. Sadder than we can find words to tell is this bereavement, particularly when viewed in the relationship the deceased bore to her own people. Wielding the great influence of the last representative of the most distinguished Hawaiian dynasty, and wielding it always for what she deemed to be truth and virtue, Queen Emma was a bulwark of righteousness to her race. The affectionate place she held in her people's hearts was in a measure exemplified a few months ago by the mournful procession that escorted her from the steamer when she returned to town in great weakness. However, we leave to those more intimately acquainted with the late Queen's character, influence, and work, the task of doing justice to her memory. Only Providence can decree who is to fill the great void caused by this distinguished Hawaiian lady's death.

I. O. O. F. ANNIVERSARY.

ITS CELEBRATION BY EXCELSIOR LODGE.

All over the continent of America, the New Year festivities have scarcely passed until the ghost in every I. O. O. F. Lodge closet takes the shape of an interrogation point. Then every member is struck with an enquiring mood, and all unite in asking, in regular and irregular form, "How shall we celebrate the 26th of April?" This question becomes "unfinished business," "new business," "good of the order," and, moreover, is discussed as earnestly in the goat's quarters out in the ante-chambers, before and after opening, as it is within the mysterious precincts. For on that day in the year 1819, Odd Fellowship was founded in America, and the anniversary is celebrated with becoming festivities by members of the Order all over the continent.

Efforts were being made this year to have a joint celebration of the occasion by "Excelsior," the senior, and "Harmony" Lodges; but the arrangements broke down at so late a day as to endanger any celebration at all. However, the members of the former Lodge pluckily determined only four or five days before the event to have a celebration, and invitations were issued on Thursday for a picnic to be held on the grounds of Mr. Allen Herbert, at Waikiki, on Saturday the 25th inst. The invitation committee was composed of Messrs. J. O. Carter, Robt. Levers, and W. E. Foster, and they did their work with searching thoroughness. Besides the members of the other Lodge, and the strangers within the gates of both, they scooped in some Odd Fellows so "ancient" as to discount the oddest and the oldest patriarch in all the tents of the Order.

The committee of arrangements was as follows: Messrs. A. Herbert, J. Emmeluth, J. Lecker, L. L. La Pierre and E. M. Marshall. The floor committee: Messrs. E. W. Peterson, W. M. Graham, and H. F. Lewis. A basket picnic was announced as the central idea of the celebration, but guests who did not care to go to the trouble of providing baskets were to be supplied at a very reasonable rate with refreshments. Busses took the main portion of the company to the grounds, the first one leaving the hall on Fort street at 10 o'clock. Mr. Foster managed the despatching of busses in a masterly manner, without confusion, delay, or any other disagreeable incident. Among the earliest departures was the Reformatory School Band in charge of the Principal, Mr. Walter Hill, the services of that band having been cheerfully granted by the Hon. the President of the Board of Education.

A more appropriate place for such a gathering could hardly be found within reach of Honolulu. The houses on the grounds are spacious enough to give shelter from any storm that might surprise a party. There is abundance of shade beneath the algaroba, inga, hou, and banyan trees that flourish on the extensive lawn. On the one side the smooth beach and the Pacific, on the other Diamond Head, the coconut groves and Kapiolani Park, make up a romantic locality.

Altogether about three hundred persons are estimated to have taken part in the picnic throughout the day. They all gave themselves up to unconstrained and informal enjoyment of the scene and of the various amusements devised by the managers. Upon the grass there were lawn tennis, croquet, football, swinging, and various athletic exercises. Dancing was conducted in the reception room of the main cottage. Mr. Herrick furnishing excellent music. Gentlemen had the freedom of the billiard room, and made good use of it. In short, the company did not require to be directed as to how they should individually or unitedly enjoy themselves, but with one consent each found pastime that suited him or her, and everyone seemed to be in pleasant spirits all the time.

Mr. Herbert himself catered for those who did not carry their own refreshments, and at noon he uncovered a superb repast in the lanai on the sea side of the main cottage. It was at once abundant and varied, well-prepared and elegantly served. Among the first of the guests invited to sit down to this fine feast were the band boys, and they appreciated the kindness and the distinction to the full, and will long cherish in their hearts a sense of the generosity of the Odd Fellows. Disposed here and there about the grounds were the small parties who had brought baskets. Many tables and chairs were furnished those who did not prefer the real picnic style of making the ground both table and chair. At that hour the place presented a festive scene so full of enjoyment as to do the eyes good. Ice cream and the choicest temperance beverages were obtainable at any time during the day.

The band played particularly well at short intervals, and besides the pleasure thus contributed the lads engaged the white boys of the party in a match of football, consisting of several games before and after dinner, of which they won a large majority and carried off the ball as a trophy. This event caused one of the chief diversions of the day, the band boys surprising all beholders by the quickness with which they took up a game that was new to them.

Some reinforcements coming out in the evening to the dance kept the company at considerable strength until half-past nine, when two large busses were required to take all into town. The members of Excelsior Lodge are to be congratulated upon the excellent carrying out of the whole celebration.

Mr. Herbert's premises, that are leased by Mrs. Morris—who, by the way, contributed greatly to the success of the above occasion—are extremely well adapted for pleasure-making by either large or small companies. There are several large lanais, in which feasts may be served, ed, and which will lend themselves to unlimited decoration. The front reception room will accommodate several sets of quadrilles, and a large parlor connected with it affords further large accommodation. In a detached building are billiard, card, and other rooms. For lovers of the beautiful there are several large, well-stocked ferneries, while there is a profusion of tropical foliage and bloom on the lawn.
